

Hi. My name is Sarah Robinson and am the DoS at Vacstuds. I'm looking forward to meeting you all in July. As the start date is approaching fast I wanted to give you some preliminary information about the teaching programme.

As I'm sure you know, the teaching will take the form of a film project and the format of lessons will be 2 days working on the film project followed by one day of more traditional lessons based on the main areas of student weaknesses observed both in and out of the classroom. Teachers will work with two different classes over the four weeks. Each teacher will work with the same class for the duration of the film project. However, for the traditional lessons taught every third day, teachers will have a different class. As a result of this it is essential that teachers liaise in order to share opinions about areas of student weakness which should be worked on.

We will shortly be posting an outline of the film project so please make sure you read this before you arrive as it makes life much easier if you are already familiar with the material. For the 'traditional' lessons we have an extremely well-stocked library of resource materials but please feel free to bring any of your own to use or share.

As far as days off are concerned, these should be should be Sundays or trip days. If, however, you require a weekday or Saturday off during the four weeks you should okay this with Ian Mucklejohn before the Course.

Please watch this space for further information as all updates will appear here.
